

Retirement of Dr. Larry Sheldon

To All of My Patients,

In 1979 I happened to meet Dr. Robert Annis at his medical building on Lyons Lane in Oakville and was invited to set up my own optometry practice in that building. I hired a local handyman and we went about constructing an office. I hired Anna Van Dyke as my secretary and from there worked to build my practice. Anna and I are still working together. This is our 40th anniversary in practice. I have decided to retire this year effective August 31, 2019.

About 16 years ago Dr. Perry Amos came to work in my office. He purchased Oakville Optometry 3 years ago and has successfully managed our practice continuing to provide excellent care to our patients. In 2017 Dr. Natasha Terzievski began her practice with our office. Like me, she is a graduate from the University of Waterloo. She will continue to provide care to the majority of my patients.

Thank you to all of my patients who have supported me over these many years. Thanks to Anna for our extraordinary run together since the opening of my office. I also want to thank Dr. Jerry Skupsky for his long friendship since my first days on Lyons Lane.

Sincerely

Dr. Larry Sheldon
